Video of my first impressions and control issues: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=eGIWUv9UhBE&feature=youtu.be>

My playtime is so low because I could barely play this due to control issues:

The mouse does not lock onto the game screen, so once the mouse reaches the window edge you are unable to keep looking around. The mouse is also visible the entire time you are playing and moving around.

I was unable to get my xbox controller to work even though there are control maps in the options.

Other than control issues, the game seemed interesting. I beat the first level and made it to the second.

The premise is that you need to destroy the MRSA virus with some kind of pill gun (left click), while simultaneously destroying cholesterol with a laser (right click). Graphics are not super fine, but I found them appealing. The second stage looked really neat, so I'll give them that.

Audio is about average, with funny dialogue spoken every once in a while.

If the dev could fix the control issues, I would have been interested enough to play more. But as it stands (and at $10), I cannot recommend.
